Catholic schools prepare for remote learning

March 18, 2020 (OMAHA, NE) – The Archdiocese of Omaha is preparing its 71 schools for remote learning that begins Monday, March 23 and could last as long as six to eight weeks.

The archdiocese is following the recommendations of Governor Pete Ricketts and Nebraska Commissioner of Education Matthew Blomstedt.

“The duration and nature of alternative learning options will be reviewed with health and civic authorities every two weeks,” said Dr. Michael Ashton, the archdiocese’s superintendent of schools.

Ashton said each school will be informing their communities this week on how they plan to go about transitioning to and sustaining quality remote learning for the foreseeable future.
